David Lobenberg has over thirty-five years’ experience teaching both college and private art classes. He has also established a reputation for conducting well organized, energetic, hands-on watercolor and drawing workshops.

Lobenberg’s figurative works are passionate and thoughtful. He starts his painting action by building on a photo foundation. Your class paintings will be based on “Tracing from your reference photo” as there will be no actual drawing in this class. More information on this process will be sent to you prior to the class.

David will demonstrate how color can be used in an abstract-like manner with splatters, drips, blossoms, runs, pours, textures, etc. The workshop will focus on painting intuitively with spontaneous feeling and emotion. Rather than brown hair, the artist goes with purple or orange. Instead of observing the color differences between one side of a face and the other, the artist may sense one side green, the other lavender. To feel color in this way gives the artist a freedom of expression and a release from observable reality. Color is used as a powerful means of expressing and evoking emotions.

This class is open to all with some experience with watercolors!
